Join Sam and Jennie as they revisit some of the most memorable scenes from high school, with unexpected twists that make it the most fun season yet. Featuring new scenes never-before-seen on TV! With such unforgettable moments, who won't be returning to "Surviving High School"? So get ready for another high school season filled with the biggest highs and the lowest lows, and the love and support of all of your favorite characters! "Even the saddest and most heartbreaking scenes seem like funny stuff in the comedy of high school, which I think is why it's such a hit," said creator Dan Fogelman. "Surviving High School" is produced by A Plus Films for The N, with Dan Fogelman, Michelle Lee and Robert Harling directing. Executive producers are Michelle Lee and Jay Chandrasekhar for A Plus Films, David Leslie Johnson and Aaron Kaplan for A Plus TV, David Janollari for Weed Road and Dan Fogelman. With lush, rich detail and the feeling of being right there, the series explores the lives of 10 former high school classmates as they return to their alma mater for a reunion. The reunion is also a chance to make things right with old friends and to reconcile with family and past relationships. For Sam, her relationship with Jennie is on the mend, but it's not perfect. Sam's continued struggles with depression have led to an unexpected and all-consuming breakup with her boyfriend, Shawn. Sam doesn't even try to hide her emotional state as she shuts herself off from everyone except Jennie. It's not long before other members of their class start to notice Sam's changed and fragile state. Reluctant to relive the many horrors of high school, their class president, Cathy, has no choice but to step up and organize the reunion as their old friend and class clown, Phil, struggles to remain positive despite his struggle with alcoholism. The new season of "Surviving High School" premieres Wednesday, October 10 on The N at 9:00pm ET/PT. "Ever since we began the process of finding a home for this show, our goal was to find the perfect partner that could offer the kind of storytelling Dan wanted to tell. We're excited that A Plus has made this dream come true with The N," said 82157476af
